For not one of the Governors-General has completed his term since the formation of the Commonwealth. Both the Marquis of Linlithgow and Lord Northcote are dead, their premature demise being attributed to the injury caused to their health by the Australian climate. Lord Tennyson threw up the office after having held it for only two years, on the ground of failing health, while Lord Dudley put forward a similar pretext, although the real causes of his resignation were troubles of another character, which were keenly resented by the Australians, who expressed no regret at his departure.

GAS STARTS FIRE

About $100 Damage Done to Broad Street Clothing Store.

Fire, caused when a rubber tube leading from a lighted gas stove became overheated and melted, shortly after 12 o'clock this morning, caused $100 damage to the building at 600 East Broad Street, occupied by Bradshaw's, clothiers, and much more to the stock. The blaze, which was on the second floor, was discovered by Patrolman J. H. Harris, who turned in an alarm from a box at Fifth and Broad Streets. Before apparatus, in charge of Chief Joynes and Assistant Chief Wise, arrived it was burning briskly, and looked as if the building was doomed. By quick work the blaze was extinguished with chemicals, and the use of water was not resorted to, which fact undoubtedly saved a much larger damage to the stock.

Police Commissioner D. F. McCarthy and Electrical Inspecters Bowry and Speights were passing at the time, and when they saw the second floor ablaze they smashed in the giass of the front door and succeeded in pulling several showcases full of goods and a large quantity of clothing into the sidewalk.

It speaks volumes for his reputation for strict impartiality and fairness as a judge, that when, after his retirement, he was appointed president of the investigation of the Titanie disaster, no voice should have been raised against his nomination, on the plea that until he became a judge he had for many years been standing counsel of the White Star Company, to which the Titanie belonged.
